

Welcome...

...to the World of Beekeeping

We hope the enclosed information will help you as you begin or expand your beekeeping activities. It is hard to select useful information such as this, not knowing your level of expertise. Also, beekeeping has been changing rapidly in the past couple of decades; even so, we have attempted to pull together some general materials in the hopes you will find them useful.

We encourage you to search the internet for the latest beekeeping information. Many agricultural colleges as well as some commercial businesses have up-to-date beekeeping information on their websites. A good place to start is our website: www.ABFnet.org. Click on the INTERNET RESOURCES link. Many of these links have additional links.

In addition to the enclosed materials, you might want to get a sample copy of –

- American Bee Journal from Dadant & Sons, 51 S. 2nd St., Hamilton, IL 62341
